HENRY DECKER DIED SUDDENLY LAST EVE.

HEART TROUBLE CAUSE OF AL-MOST INSTANT DEATH OF RETIRED FARMER.

LONG RESIDENT OF COMMUNITY

Formerly Resided On Farm North of City, Retiring About Ten Years Ago.

Henry Decker, one of the prominent retired farmers of Dixon, died suddenly at his home, 607 N. Hennepin avenue, at 6 p. m. Wednesday, from heart failure, with which he was stricken after doing the work around the barn. He had apparently been in the best of health all day, eating a hearty dinner at noon and attending a meeting of dairymen at the city hall in the afternoon.

Returning from the meeting he performed his customary work and entered the house to prepare for his supper when he was stricken, passing away very suddenly.

Mr. Decker was about 81 years of age and had been a resident of this vicinity many years, residing on his farm north of town until about ten years ago, when he retired and moved to this city. His wife passed away about three years ago, the surviving children being Charles Decker of Okla., Mrs. Joseph Beach and the Misses Ada and Bess Decker, Dixon.

Funeral arrangements had not been made this afternoon, pending word from relatives.

Obituary.

Henry Decker was born in Sussex Co., N. J., 81 years ago. When 25 years of age his parents moved to Mehoopany, Pa., in which place the parents died. Mr. Decker was of a family of seven, only one of whom survives him. When the war broke out he joined the 143rd Pa. Vols. and gave three years to very active service, two of which were spent in the signal corps. At the close of the war he came to Dixon and bought a farm, three miles north of the city where he resided until 1900, when he moved to the present home.

On Sept. 26, 1867, Mr. Decker was united in marriage with Miss Emogene Bunnell. To this union four children were born. These are: Mrs. (Rev.) Beach of Dixon, Mr. Charles Decker, professor in the State University at Norman, Okla.; the Misses Ada and Bess Decker at home. Mrs.

Father Of Murdered Girl Throws Self Wide Open To Questioners

Pontiac, Ill., Nov. 16.—The state's case against Jacob Diemer, his wife and his daughter Magdaline, formally charged with killing Christine Diemer, split upon the rock of medical opinion. Directly contradictory declarations by two of the doctors who performed the autopsy when the body of the Diemer girl was taken from the Vermillion river on Nov. 8, swung the opinion of all Livingston county from an apparent belief of guilt of the parents and sister of the dead girl to the possibility that she died accidentally or committed suicide.

Girl Admittedly Insane.

Dr. A. B. Middleton, called by Coroner W. O. Myers, to examine the body, adheres to the original theory of murder, and, in addition expresses a public opinion that the aged father of the girl is alone responsible for her death. Dr. J. A. Marshall, former physician at the state reformatory, and family doctor of the Diemers for years, insists on the other hand that Christine died a suicide. In support of his theory Dr. Marshall quotes Dr. George Michel, superintendent of a private sanitarium in Peoria, where the girl was treated for a fourteen week period. That she was of unsound mind is admitted by both state and defense, and the fact lends some weight to the belief that the girl died voluntarily.

In spite of the differing suicidal opinion, however, Coroner Myers swore to warrants charging Jacob Diemer, the father, G. Maria Diemer, the mother, and Magdaline Diemer, a sister, with manslaughter, and turned his evidence over to State's Attorney P. A. Ortman for presentation to the Livingston grand jury and for prosecution if indictments are returned.

In the meantime Coroner Myers announced a thorough investigation will be carried on to determine which theory is the correct one.

Released on $10,000 Bond.
Diemer and his wife and daughter were later released under $10,000 bonds each to appear before the grand jury at Pontiac.

Marriage of Principals in Sayler Trial Announced.

WATSEKA, ILL., Nov. 16. Mrs. Lucy Sayler and Dr. W. R. Miller, principals at Watseka in the Sayler murder trial of 1910, are to be married soon. Announcement of their engagement was informally made by Mrs. Sayler at her home in Danville following the release of Dr. Miller from the Joliet penitentiary a few days ago, her own term expiring three years ago.

"We are to be married after Dr. Miller returns from Pennsylvania, where he is visiting relatives," said Mrs. Sayler.

When Dr. Miller finished his term at Joliet he went straight to Danville where Mrs. Sayler met him at the train with open arms. She has lived there the last three years.

BABY GIRL BURNED TO DEATH; A MYSTERY

ORIGIN OF FIRE WHICH CAUSED CHILD'S DEATH IS NOT KNOWN.

Ida Vilnek, 18 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blasnik Vilnek, of DePue, was burned to death in a mysterious fire which threatened the home. The child was found dead upon the pantry floor with all the clothing burned from its body.

It is supposed the fire was started by her sister Ann, three years old, who was in the house when the fire occurred. Mr. Vilnek, who is a laborer on the night shift at the oxide plant of the Mineral Point Zinc works, was asleep in another part of the house and was not awakened by the commotion.

BERLIN SAYS CHARGE IS BIG FALSEHOOD

DENIES SUBMARINE FIRED ON LIFEBOATS OF STEAMER ROWANMORE.

(Associated Press)

Berlin, Nov. 17.—The assertion that the German submarine which sank the British ship Rowanmore on which were several Americans, fired upon lifeboats containing members of the crew, was dismissed as utterly false in the report of the commander of the submarine, who says the men owe their lives to the precautions of the Germans. The report says that during the 20-minute pursuit of the steamship the shots were aimed accurately to limit the damage to the crew on the boat. The Rowanmore was hit ten times, the report says, but no Americans were injured.

The fifty dancers had taken refuge in a different portion of the house and escaped injury. Three additional sticks of dynamite were found in the yard by Sheriff Barnes.

Sherman, confessed slayer of Joe Derix, LaSalle taxi driver who was shot to death near Ladd the night of July 17, will probably not be brought to trial on the murder charge but will probably be found insane by the court and sentenced to a life term in the state hospital for the criminal insane at Chester.

The case is scheduled to come up tomorrow at the opening of the criminal term, but it is said Attorney C. N. Hollerich has about concluded that under the circumstances it would be impossible to get a conviction of murder against the boy, and will recommend that he be sent to an insane asylum.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON ELECTION RESULT

Messages Pour in, "Get Ready Quick for 1920."

New York, Nov. 16.—Radiating as much gloom as if he had been elected president of the United States again, Colonel Roosevelt chatted freely but privately with 1920 boomers and newspaper men at the Hotel London.

Asked to comment on the defeat of Charles E. Hughes, the colonel broadly grinned and came back, "I am in the same position as the mate to whom the captain of a New Bedford ship, said 'What I want from you sir, is silence, and a little of that.' That will be my course for maybe a few months."

The colonel, on visiting his hotel here for the first time since the defeat of Mr. Hughes found letters and telegrams in abundance, reading in substance: "Had you instead of Hughes been the Republican candidate Wilson would have been beaten to a frazzle. Get ready quick for 1920."

Personal appeals to become a candidate came also from A. P. Moore, the Pittsburgh Progressive leader, Progressive National Committeeman Horace Wilkinson of Onondaga and others who called upon him. The colonel exhibited intense delight at the renewed devotion of those who fought with him in 1912.

Methodist Ministers Arrange Plan To Raise Share Of Pension Fund

An active campaign to raise $40,000, the Dixon District's share of the $500,000 asked from Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church for the preachers' pension fund, will be undertaken soon. District Superintendent Phelps presented his plan, as follows, to the ministers of the district who met here on Wednesday:

Upon Sunday, Nov. 26, the pastors in the district will deliver sermons on the question. The following Sunday, Dec. 3, a layman chosen from each congregation in the district will present the matter to the church members. On Dec. 10 the various pastors are to exchange pulpits and present the subject. The campaign is to be closed Sunday, Dec. 17, when the subscription will be taken up.

It is hoped the entire $40,000 will be secured at that time.

Dr. Elliott Lectures.

Dr. George Elliott of Detroit, one of the most noted and eloquent orators of the Methodist pulpit, delivered the feature address of both the afternoon and evening sessions, speaking on "The Minister and His Work." In the address he touched upon the problem that confronts the average pastor as the rigors of age creep upon him.

HARMON

The Highway Commissioners met at the town clerk's office Thursday evening to transact business and set tie up for the road work that they did this fall; they put in nearly a mile of road with gravel which they got during the summer and fall; they say that it will make a fine road when it gets settled down; they have been getting some of the dirt roads dragged over, which will put the rutts and makes them smooth enough for an automobile; they expect to put in more hard roads next summer, if everything is favorable. The farmers agree to donate the hauling if the commissioners get the gravel here, which they agree to do.

HENRY DECKER DIED.

Decker departed this life three years ago last September.

Mr. Decker was an excellent Christian gentleman. He made and kept many close friends. His interest in things worth while never grew less. It was his delight to come in touch with something new. He built his very life and thought into the fabric of the community. It is such as he that have given permanence and progress to these fast developing commonwealths. The Methodist Episcopal church of this city has lost a staunch supporter and interested worker. Mr. Decker has been for many years a member of the official board but at the time of his demise was a member of the board of trustees.

The members of his family have the sympathy of the whole community. He will be much missed in social and religious circles. A good man has been taken away.

LOOK AT A CHILD'S TONGUE WHEN CROSS FEVERISH AND SICK

Take no chances! Move poisons from liver and bowels once Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

PRINCESS THEATRE

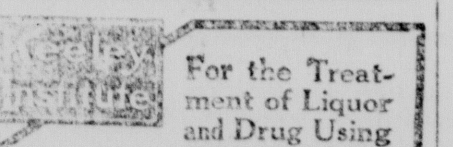

The third episode of the current Universal serial, "Liberty, a Daughter of the U. S. A.," featuring Marie Walcamp, to be shown at the Princess tonight, contains an actual production of the Mexican raid on Columbus, N. M.

The filming of this picture was one of the most spectacular sights ever witnessed in a motion picture studio, being realistic to the most minute detail. Beverly Griffith, who was correspondent for the Animated Weekly at the border at the time of the raid, took snap shots of the town before and after the Mexicans arrived. From there the town was actually reproduced and the film is an exact duplicate of the battle which made history between the United States and Mexico.

The filming of the scene was quite a task and great credit is due Jacques Jacard for the excellent way in which the whole thing was managed. In the early morning the Mexicans crept upon the town and entered the sleeping village.

OUR BOYS and GIRLS SOME MUSICAL GAMES

Musical games are a great help in choosing partners where shy little boys and girls are concerned. The excitement of the moment is so great that the little boy forgets that his ruffled little friend is that much dreaded thing, a "partner," and regards her as sort of a prize that he has won thru earnest effort.

A person who is good at the piano is almost indispensable, and he or she should enter into the games and suit the music to the moment's need.

A game which children delight in is called the circle game.

When the music strikes up the little girls form a big circle hand in hand, facing outward, while the boys, who are facing inward, join hands and form a ring outside them.

The girls dance to the right and the boys to the left, until at a signal, the music stops suddenly while the children halt and each boy dances off with the little girl he finds standing opposite. Children who cannot be made to dance together any other way will find such fun in the game that they will need no urging.

The ribbon loop game is another pretty affair, and for this one little girl must be chosen by lot, for she and all the boys present take part in it.

The little girl stands in the center of the room with a loop of bright pink ribbon, and with this she tries to lasso a partner from among the boys, who join hands and dance around her.

As each secures her partner, another little girl takes her place, and so the game goes on. When all have had a turn they join as partners in a bean hunt or some other pastime which has been planned.

In musical blindman's bluff one boy is blindfolded and stood in the center of the room while the little girls dance around him in a circle—not taking hands until he catches one of them for his partner. Then another boy is blindfolded and so on.

The beckoning game is lots of fun for little children. The music strikes up a lively air and the little girls stand in a long line down the center of the room.

Each little girl in turn beckons to the little boy with whom she would like to dance and he comes and claims her as his partner.

Then there's the powder puff game—ever such a fun provoking performance!

For this provide a powder and puff dipped in talcum powder, and to begin with let a little girl holding the powder puff takes her place upon a low chair in the center of the floor. Two small boys are next called out to kneel before her, and giving her hand to one, she dabs the one she has rejected on the nose with the powder puff before going off to dance. This, of course, amid childish howls of delight, as one of each pair of boys present receives a dab of powder on the nose and the girls continue to choose their partners.

The Cinderella game is also little known. For it provide a sheet to be held taut lengthwise just about an inch above the floor across the middle of the room.

All the little girls go behind the sheet and the boys remain on the other side.

As the music strikes up each little girl behind the sheet thrusts forth a foot which peeps just beneath on the other side. This is a signal for the boys to guess who are the owners of the dainty, pink, blue, yellow or white party slippers. Each making his choice puts the tip of his own shoe beside that of the Cinderella slipper he has chosen.

Then the sheet is dropped and each little couple whose toes touch are partners in the following games—Detroit Free Press.

Just As Good

Mrs. Willis—So you aren't afraid of burglars? No doubt your husband has a revolver.

Mrs. Willis—Yes; but I am so afraid of firearms that I have hidden it.

Mrs. Willis—Then what protection would you have in case of a robbery?

Mrs. Willis—My dear, the way that man will roar at me when he can't find that gun will scare any burglar out of his wits!

The Chance Origin of Biscuits

ALL domestic authorities are agreed that the word biscuit means twice baked, but few are aware of the pretty little tale connected with its origin.

In 1550 the French Court was journeying through the provinces. While making a stay in a small Languedoc village, the master-baker of the place was commanded to supply a cake which should not only be palatable but should also be a kind not procurable in any other place.

The order caused the master-baker to think furiously, for he was an ambitious man who hoped to establish a reputation. But the more he thought the less he succeeded in puzzling out a new recipe. He mixed flour, sugar and milk, and then, thinking that nothing new could come out of his mixture, he left the shop in despair.

His little son, who was also his apprentice, remained alone in the bakehouse, and wondered what was to be done with the dough, since his father had left no instructions. The father did not return for some time, and the boy, knowing that the dough would spoil unless it was baked very soon, decided at last that, whatever the consequences might be, he must act on his own responsibility, and do the best he could. So he made the dough into small round cakes, and put them into a moderately hot oven. Presently he took them out again, and then it occurred to him that the cake would look much better glazed. Therefore he put a glaze on them, and pushed them back into the oven. He was just about to take them out again when his father came hurrying in, gave a quick glance round and asked: "Where is the dough I prepared before I went out?" "Here it is, father, I have made it into little cakes, and they have been baked twice" (biscuits), said the lad. The father, in a fury, raged around the bakehouse, then took up one of the little cakes, put it into his mouth, and was delighted, for the boy had invented by mere chance a cake which the father had vainly tried to produce. The little biscuit became the national cake of France, and has kept its name and fame to this day.

An Immigrant Party

WHY not try an Immigrant Party? Decorate your hall with the flags of different countries—they can be copied from pictures in the back of the dictionary—and when the curtain rises, let there be a great bustling on deck by porters and small boys in uniform, tossing luggage about and making the gang plank ready.

A dignified captain paces the deck and a purser and stewards add to the reality of the scene. Immigrants should all be in costume, and here great latitude is allowed. It is interesting to see one's friend in the garb of a Turk, another dressed as a Russian peasant, and perhaps find one's own daughter as a quaint little Dutch girl. One party may consist of a wonderfully gowned French comely with her two French maids—another a group of Spanish dancers—and so on.

It adds greatly to the enjoyment of the party if three or four special numbers can be arranged to be given on the stage during the evening. For instance, six young ladies may give a Spanish dance, or a group of Dutch girls may sing a Dutch song, giving a simple wooden shoe dance at the end. Perhaps some talented youth will sing a dialect song in appropriate costume. Even without much preparation, many funny things are bound to occur during the evening, for if ever there is a time when one feels overwhelmingly brilliant, it is when one is arrayed in some curious costume.

This party can be quite elaborately carried out with a pretentious program, or it may be arranged most simply, according to the conveniences at hand for its production, and its probable patronage.

THE REST-ROOM.

The Dixon Woman's club has appointed a committee of six ladies to arrange for the establishment of a rest-room in this city. These ladies are going at the proposition in a very determined and business-like manner, and we predict that Dixon will have a rest-room before long.

The rest-room proposition is something that has been neglected in Dixon. Several attempts have been made within the past couple of years, but have faded out before the rest-room was secured. This last move on the part of the women should and will, we believe, end successfully.

The value of a rest-room downtown in Dixon is apparent to all. It will develop benefits that we had not thought of. If possible, the ladies want the rest-room on the Lincoln Highway, and in this we believe they are wise, for tourists appreciate the comforts of such a place and it must be in a place that is easily accessible if strangers are to find and make use of it.

In connection with the rest room, if it is placed on the Lincoln Highway, might be established a sort of an information bureau, concerning the roads, hotels, restaurants, attractive short side trips out of Dixon, points of interest in this section, and all information of interest to tourists.

Dixon merchants and business men will gladly aid in the support of such an institution, we believe, and the city authorities have also shown interest in such a progressive move in the past and we believe that forces interested in the welfare of Dixon will combine and put the rest-room through.

A newspaper dispatch says the mother of Secretary of War Baker says she is sorry her son is a member of President Wilson's cabinet. It is with difficulty we restrain ourselves from suggesting that perhaps there are others who are also sorry Mr. Baker is—but we said we wouldn't say it, so of course we won't.

Miss Jeanette Rankin of Missoula, Montana, a republican, secured a 2,000 majority over her democratic opponent, a man, in a race for the congressional honors from her district, and won, and now there will be a woman in congress, the first in the history of America. The time will come when there will be more of them there.

The republicans of the east realize that the west has something to say about the presidency, and as they look westward, the figure of Governor Frank O. Lowden looms up big and powerful.

When a candidate is itching for office you'd think he'd like to be scratched, but he doesn't.

OUR BOYS and GIRLS

THE CROW

Once upon a time there were three princesses who were all three fair and beautiful; but the youngest, altho she was not fairer than the other two was the most lovable of them all.

About half a mile from the palace in which they lived there stood a castle, which was uninhabited and almost a ruin, but the garden that surrounded it was a mass of blooming flowers, and in this garden the youngest princess used often to walk.

One day when she was pacing to and fro under the lime trees a black crow hopped out from a rose bush in front of her. The poor bird was all torn and bleeding, and the kind little princess was quite unhappy about it. When the crow saw this it turned to her and said:

"I am not really a black crow but an enchanted prince, who has been doomed to pass his youth in misery. If you only liked, princess, you could save me. But you would have to say good-by to all your people and come and be my constant companion in this ruined castle. There is one habitable room in it in which there is a golden bed; there you will have to live all by yourself, and don't forget that whatever you may see or hear in the night you must not scream out, for if you give as much as a single cry my sufferings will be doubled."

The good-natured princess at once left her home and her family and hurried to the ruined castle and took possession of the room with the golden bed.

When night approached she lay down, but she shut her eyes tight sleep would not come. At midnight she heard to her great horror some one coming along the passage, in a minute her door was flung open and a troop of strange beings entered the room. They at once proceeded to light a fire in the huge fireplace; then they placed a great cauldron of boiling water on it. When they had done this they approached the bed on which the trembling girl lay, and screaming and yelling all the time, they dragged her toward the cauldron. She nearly died with fright but she uttered not a sound. Then of a sudden the cock crowed and the evil spirits vanished.

At the same moment the crow appeared and hopped joyfully around the room. It thanked the princess heartily for her goodness and said that its sufferings had already been greatly lessened.

Now one of the princess' elder sisters, who was inquisitive, had found out about everything, and went to pay her youngest sister a visit in the ruined castle. She implored her so urgently to let her pass the night with her in the golden bed that at last the good natured little princess consented. But at midnight, when the odd folk appeared the elder sister screamed with terror and from this time on the youngest princess insisted on keeping watch alone.

So she lived in solitude all the day time and at night she would have been frightened had she not been so brave, but every day the crow came and thanked her for her endurance, and assured her that his sufferings were far less than they had been.

And so two years passed away, when one day the crow came to the princess and said: "In another year I shall be freed from the spell I am under at present, because then the seven years will be over. But before I can resume my natural form and take possession of the belongings of my forefathers you must go out into the world and take service as a maid-servant."

The young princess consented at once, and for a whole year she served as a maid, but in spite of her youth and beauty she was badly treated and suffered many things. One evening when she was spinning flax and had worked her little white hands weary, she heard a rustling beside her and a cry of joy. Then she saw a handsome youth standing beside her, who knelt down at her feet and kissed the little weary white hands.

"I am the prince," he said, "whom you in your goodness, when I was wandering about in the shape of a black crow freed from the most awful torments. Come now to my castle with me and let us live there happily together."

So they went to the castle where they had both endured so much. But when they reached it, it was difficult to believe that it was the same, for it had all been rebuilt. And there they lived together for a hundred years.

Strange Taste

A gentleman was visiting at a country house where lived a little boy, and being pleased with the lad's brightness and good behavior gave him a shilling.

"Is it a good one?" asked the boy, and on being assured that it was he exclaimed, "Oh I'd much rather have a bad one."

"Why, what ever makes you wish that?" asked the stranger.

"Well, you see," said the little boy, "if it is a bad one I shall be allowed to keep it, but if it is good it will have to go into my money box."—My Magazine.

But most of all you'll be interested in our "No Sale Policy," the plan under which we're selling our Overcoats; that plan assures you of

Greater Overcoat Values

The "No Sale Plan," briefly, does away with the marking of overcoats at one price now and a lower price after Jan. 1st or 15th. Our price now is low---LOWER than ever for the same standard qualities. That price gives the early buyer the same proposition that heretofore only the very late buyer has had. You'd no longer need to wait until the season is half gone to spend pour overcoat money---you can do it here and now at less money than elsewhere for the same qualities. This progressive and fair policy is an advantage to the early buyer in giving him the same high quality at a less price---is advantage to the late buyer in securing for him more seasonable service from his coat and at the same price that has usually prevailed later in the season---and lastly to ourselves, the advantage is in a greatly increased volume of business.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—At the edge of the Lakota Indian reservation a rider by strategy rescues a quarterbreed girl and two men from an Indian attack.

CHAPTER II.—The rider is Capt. Floyd Hardy, U. S. army, new Indian agent. The rescued, Reginald Vandervyn, nephew of U. S. Senator Clemmer and agency clerk, Jacques Dupont, post trader and his daughter, Marie.

CHAPTER II.

The Acting Agent.

Within a few minutes the party had neared the top of the ridge. The thoroughbred mare came trotting up from the hollow on the other side. At sight of them her rider brought her to a stand. The older man spurred his pony up the pound of the summit. "By Gar, that wasn't no bad play you made, partner," he called. "Taking the butte gave you the drop on 'em."

The man whose strategy had routed the Indians did not reply. The girl looked up at him with confident expectancy in her sparkling eyes. He did not move. The expression of his harsh features was severe, but there was a flush under the tropical tan on his cheeks.

She hesitated, her rich color deepening. Then her pique gave way to a more generous impulse. She drew the gauntlet glove from her right hand. Under his cold gaze her eyes again hardened with offended pride, and again they softened and glowed with frank approbation.

"Can you forgive me?" she asked. He bowed formally. "If you think there is anything to be forgiven."

"You know there is, I wish to apologize," she stood up in the buckboard and held out her hand to him. It was very white and shapely. He bowed over it with grave courtesy, as he took it in his nervous clasp.

"You have no need to apologize, Miss—"

"Dupont—Marie Dupont."

"None whatever, Miss Dupont," he went on. "I should have explained my intentions."

"Why didn't you make for the butte first thing, instead of crossing the coulee?" broke in the blond young man.

"I did not wish to shoot until I understood the cause of the trouble. There was also the chance that they would cease firing when I rode towards them."

"That was nervy of you," remarked the girl's father—"that and making the second run when they'd come so near gitting you, the first time."

"You are Jacques Dupont, the Indian trader?"

"That's me—only they make it 'Jake' this side of Ottawa. Marie guessed you're an army officer."

Captain Floyd Hardy, United States cavalry, stated the newcomer as he raised his glasses.

The blond young man straightened out of his insolently careless pose, and spoke in the tone of a gentleman: "Pleased to meet you, Captain Hardy. You were in command of the Philippine constabulary force that suppressed the recent insurrection in the Sulu Islands. You received favorable mention from congress. I am Reginald Vandervyn of the Vandervyns of Staten Island. Senator Clemmer is my uncle."

The captain responded to the introduction with a curt bow. "See anything of the p'leece, Cap?" asked Dupont.

"Yes. They should be here in a few minutes."

"I see them," said the girl. "They're coming down the slope this side of the Sioux Creek divide."

"They're slow," growled Vandervyn. "I'll ride back and head them 'cross country. They have good horses. They shall run out every buck in the bunch."

He spun his pony about to sprint down the road into the coulee. Hardy uttered a stern order: "Halt!"

Angered at the command and still more at the impulse that compelled him to obey it, Vandervyn twisted about in his saddle to face the officer with a challenging stare.

"Keep that talk for your inferiors," he said. "I am acting agent of this reservation. What I say goes. I'll have those bucks trailed till every one of them is in the guardhouse or feeding the crows."

"You are mistaken, Mr. Vandervyn," replied Hardy, and he drew an official envelope from an inside pocket. "You are only the chief clerk on this reservation. I have been detailed to serve as acting agent."

"You?" cried Vandervyn. "Why, it was all fixed for me to be appointed agent. My uncle wired me that my name would go through for the promotion without a hitch. So you pulled the wires to cut me out?"

"I pulled no wires, Mr. Vandervyn," Hardy coldly met the accusation. "On my return from the islands, last month, I asked for a detail to active service in the open, preferably here in the northwest, on account of my health."

"Do you mean to say you did not ask for this place in particular?"

"No. The detail was given me because of the killing of the late agent and the reported restlessness of the tribe."

"You'll find these ugly bucks different from Moros."

"Perhaps," said Hardy. He looked at the two big, lumpy sacks that were lashed on the buckboard. "You had started for the railroad?"

"Pere and Mr. Van wished to ship out the ore," explained the girl.

"Ore?" inquired Hardy.

"Well, yes, it's a sort of ore," admitted Dupont. "You see, me and—"

"I'll make it clear to Captain Hardy in two words, Jake," broke in Vandervyn. He looked at the new agent with a frank, direct gaze. "You see, captain, some of the Indians have been getting ore, back in the mountains. Jake trades them goods for it. The barter has been a good thing for them, and so far, I believe, Jake has lost nothing."

Dupont narrowed his shrewd gray eyes as if calculating. "Well, no, that's no lie, Cap. Take it in the long run, I ain't lost nothing. It might figure out I've broke even or maybe some better."

Vandervyn winked at Hardy. "When an Indian trader admits he may have done some better than to have come out even, we can guess what that means."

"Nom d'un chien!" grumbled Dupont. "Ain't the risk to count?"

"It has been an unnecessary risk for you to keep your daughter on the reservation after the killing of Mr. Noggen," reproved Hardy. "I presume she is now going away, not to return until the trouble has passed."

"You are quite mistaken, Captain Hardy," said the girl. "I am going for the drive and to send off a mail order."

"Please remember my baggage. You had better ride on after your daughter. The escort will soon follow."

Hardy turned to the stolid-faced trader.

WILSON TO MEET RAILWAY ATTACK

Plans to Strengthen Adamson 8-Hour Law.

WILL ASK NEW LEGISLATION

Congressional Action to Be Sought to Meet Constitutional Objections. Railroad Companies Plan to File Multiplicity of Suits to Be Pending When Law Goes into Effect.

Washington, Nov. 16.—In anticipation of a wholesale attack by the railroads upon the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law, the administration is understood to have agreed upon a plan of passing additional legislation at the coming session of congress in order to insure the chances of the law becoming effective. This new legislation will be framed to meet the constitutional objection to the law in its present form and will be a revision and strengthening of the Adamson act.

The President is said by his closest advisors to be thoroughly in earnest in his desire to have the principles embodied in the Adamson act become operative and all of the influence of the administration will be behind the proposed changes in the law, which will be introduced and passed while the Democrats still hold the majority in congress.

Railways to File Many Suits.

It is understood here that the railroads plan to file suit against the law in every judicial district in the country. This would mean such a multiplicity of suits that it would be practically impossible to have them disposed of before the first of the year when the law is to become effective. It is also recognized that there will be conflicting opinions from the judges of the different districts which would further tend to muddle the situation and operate against the enforcement of the law.

So many of these suits have already been filed that the department of justice has felt obliged to help in the preparation of the government's case. It is announced by the department that Frank Hagerman of Kansas City has been retained as special counsel for this purpose.

Switchmen's Troubles to the Point.

Hope is expressed in official circles that the arbitration proceedings now being held in New York between the switchmen's unions and representatives of thirteen railroads may lead to a settlement of the points at issue and thereby avert the threatened strike. It will be remembered that the switchmen did not join with the other brotherhoods in the controversy which led to the enactment of the Adamson act, but the question involved and now under discussion is exactly the same, that is, the eight-hour day and time and a half for over-time.

No Stops for Injunctions.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 16.—Commenting on the suits of the railroads to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, asserted that "the eight-hour law will go into effect, injunction or no injunction." He said it was probable that representatives of the railroad brotherhoods would appear before the federal convention here.

All Roads Filing Suit.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 16.—Attacks on the Adamson eight hour law were filed in the United States district court at Minneapolis by counsel representing the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroads. Counsel for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads said that the cases were filed at Minneapolis in order to be in the same court as the Minneapolis & St. Louis action.

Railroads all over the country will follow in filing suits to test the constitutionality of the Adamson law. Indications are that every road will take the matter into court.

About 5,000 actions probably will result.

BISHOP CHENEY SUCCEDES

Noted Episcopal Leader of Chicago Was in 81st Year.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Bishop Charles Edward Cheney of the Chicago synod of the Reformed Episcopal church, which he helped establish, and for fifty-six years rector of the Christ church, died in his eighty-first year.

Dr. Cheney was born in Canandaigua, N. Y., in 1836, and was a graduate of Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., and of the Alexandria Theological seminary, in Virginia. He was ordained in the Protestant Episcopal ministry in 1858, and two years later he was married to Clara Emma Griswold of Chicago, who died March 1, 1911.

He was made bishop of the synod of Chicago in 1878. He served as president of the synod of Reformed Episcopal churches of the central states for two terms, being elected in 1905 and re-elected two years later.

Dies of Rifle Wound.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 16.—Carl Tegler, aged fourteen, died in a hospital here of wounds received by an explosion of a rifle.

CLEANING HOUSE

I am seated in the cowshed for an energetic spouse, with her mops and such appliances, is busy cleaning house.

I'm a melancholy exile, till her groomsome task is done; I am seated in the cowshed—other refuge have I none. Oh, the annual house cleaning—who invented such a scheme? There are soapuds in the parlor and the hall is full of steam; there are pools of liquid water scattered over all the floors, and the womenfolk are scrubbing all the windows and the doors.

When the soapfest isn't going, I've some standing in my home; I'm as bossy and important as a senator of Rome, and the women pay attention to the pregnant things I say, and I seem the fount of wisdom when my larynx is in play. In my little stucco mansion I'm the giver of the laws. I'm expounder of the statutes, just as Cincinnatus was.

But when spring again is with us, after winter's three months' seclusion and the womenfolk get busy at the cleaning of the house, I, the legal lord and master, much resemble twenty cents, and this needs no explanation to the mob of married gentils. I am banished from the parlor, I am exiled from my den; all they're done with suds and water I can't use the house again.

I am seated in the cowshed, eating cold and clammy beans, and I'm sighing for my slippers and my pipe and magazines. And the cow is looking at me as she chews the wholesome hay; being dumb, she cannot prattle, but her actions seem to say, "Oh such language as you're using every mortal critter scorns, and your pyrotechnic cusswords give me fatoids in my horns!"—By Walt Mason from Judge.

UNGUARDED MOMENTS

Undoubtedly the most kindly act ever consummated by an ordinary indifferent fate, was the inauguration of the blessed institution of unguarded moments. In spite of the deal of cruel abuse and bitter contumely that has been carelessly heaped upon these happy go lucky bits of eternity that illuminate the pathway of time, they really had no little share in the happiness and the upward evolution of the human race. Hence it is that we view with alarm the coming era of rampant efficiency, when not a single tick of time will be allowed to slip back into the past without having rendered a full account of its accomplishments and the benefits it has bestowed upon humanity.

But, thank heaven, we are not fully efficient yet, and—more thanks to Heaven—we are not likely to be so for some time to come. The one hopeful thing about the present efficiency crusade is that it is hopeless. This old world has always been fond of its unguarded moments. Let us cherish and nourish the heritage.

Until Father Time calls us away from the delightfully inefficient game of living and loving, let there be a few unguarded moments every day. Let us do a few things that do not pay, let us speak a few words that short-sighted humanity considers unwise, let us commit a deed now and then that only the master of the show knows is best for us.—From Judge.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

It's trying to be a millionaire that nearly always makes a man go broke. The way for a man to be a hero to a woman is for him to not belong to her.

Mock modesty is ever so much more squeamish than there is any need to be.

A man tries to educate the children by being cross and a woman by feeding them.

When a girl is shy with men it's a sign her mother would be astonished if she knew how she really was when there weren't any parents around.

A western man has invented a preparation for restoring old paintings. A preparation for restoring new umbrellas to their owners would be more popular.

When a fool hen takes a notion to sit she doesn't care a rap whether there are any eggs in the nest or not. Lazy men are built on the same plan.

It pleases the average man more to have a woman tell him that he is the first man she ever loved than to have her tell him the truth.

Every time a man gets the best of a bargain he calls it cunning, but when the other fellow gets the best of it it's a barefaced swindle.

An Ohio couple kept their marriage a secret for six years—and, strange to say, the woman in the case wasn't mute, at that.

In the contest for happiness it's a draw between the young girl with her first beau and the young mother with her first baby.

If a millionaire tells you that he was far happier when he earned a dollar a day, remind him of what David said in his haste.

The weather vane is the only wind instrument that doesn't annoy the neighbors.

Many a courtship is torpedoed on the sea of matrimony.

Let's not worry; we'll get the earth sooner or later.

There's nothing more uncertain than a sure thing.

GERMANS BEGIN SOMME ATTACK

Germans Retreating.
 Petrograd, Nov. 16.—Von Macken-sen's army is in retreat in Dobrudja and burning villages as it falls back.
 On the Transylvania front in the region of Campulung fierce fighting continues.

Explosion on Ship.
 Stockholm, Nov. 16.—A local newspaper says a recent explosion aboard Russian ammunition steamer Brecent at Archangel caused the death of 150 persons and wounded 650.

Snow and Fog.
 Bucharest, Nov. 16.—Snow is falling in the Carpathians and the cold is intense. Torrential rains are recorded in Dobrudja.

Paris, Nov. 16.—An important German counteroffensive began at 6 o'clock in the morning against French positions south of the Somme, between Ablaincourt and Chaulnes woods, after two days of intense bombardment. The Germans attacked desperately, the war office announces, using burning liquid. The official announcement says the Germans were repulsed everywhere except east of Pressoire, where they reached a group of ruined houses.

Berlin Admits Loss of Beaumont.
 Berlin, Nov. 16.—North of the Ancre river the British attacked ceaselessly with strong forces. The official report says the British captured the village of Beaumont, but that everywhere else their violent assaults broke down with heavy losses.

Roumania Wins Dobrudja Towns.
 Bucharest, Nov. 16.—From the border of western Moldavia to the Slanic and Olteu valleys, in Transylvania, the Austro-German forces are being pursued beyond the frontier by the Roumanian troops, according to announcement by the war office. In the Jiu valley the Roumanians have been forced back to their second-line trenches as the result of continued violent Teuton attacks, the statement adds, and the Roumanians also have been obliged to yield some ground in the Alt valley.

The Roumanians have occupied the Village of Boasic, on the Danube, nine miles north of Tchernavoda, and progressed along the whole Dobrudja front.

Reinforced Teutons Push For Back.
 Petrograd, Nov. 16.—Heavily reinforced German troops have succeeded in further pushing back Roumanian forces which for several days have been on the defensive in the Jiu valley below the Vulcan Pass district, the war office statement says.

There have been some Roumanian reverses also on the Transylvanian front in the Alt River valley.
 At other points on the Transylvan-ian lines, however, the war office announced, the Roumanians have taken the offensive and repelled the enemy.
 The successes occurred north and south in the Olteu valley, where three machine guns and many prisoners were taken.

Admits Bulgarian Retirement.
 London, Nov. 16.—Berlin admits a Bulgarian retirement at one point before French attacks in Macedonia.
 Sofia, on the other hand, tells of nothing but repulses of the French with heavy losses.

French Gain on Somme.
 London, Nov. 16.—The French brought up strong forces and captured St. Pierre Vaast wood south of the Somme. This part of the official statement was in the cabled announcement, but not in the wireless report.

 eastern capitalists and workmen placed at work cleaning it up.
 Fires were built under the boilers and pumps are draining the mine of water, preparatory to a full resumption of operations with two hundred men December first.
